Matrimonial.

The engagement of Mr. Roger Barnes, of Mr. Sterling, and Miss Adelaide Stewart, of Winchester, is announced, the wedding to take place November 14th.

The engagement is announced of Mr. Lewis Pearce Mathews, of Covington, and Miss Mable Thomas, of Springfield, O. Mr. Mathews is a son of the late Major Thomas A. Mathews, formerly well-known in this city.

The following invitations have been sent out: "Mr. and Mrs. James H. Shropshire invite you to be present at the marriage of their daughter, Jessie, to Mr. Joseph Brock, Thursday afternoon, November the Fourteenth, Nineteen Hundred and One, at one o'clock, Christian church, Leesburg, Ky."

The District meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, Lexington District, Ky. Conference, will be held in this city, the 14th and 15th of this month. Miss Mattie Watts, who has labored in Brazil, for many years, and who is at home for a rest, will be present. The public is cordially invited to be present at these meetings and especially the missionary societies of the different churches.

Amusements.

The Grace Rentfrow Stock Company began a week's engagement at Hollands opera house last night. The S. R. O. sign went up early in the evening. The troupe "made good" both in their interpretation of the play and in their specialties, and there is every reason to predict that crowded houses will prevail throughout the week. The company is very evenly balanced and there was not a poor actor in the cast. Miss Rentfrow is a little artist of ability and her support is altogether capable. Between the acts clever song and dance and monologue specialties were introduced, making the performance continuous.—Hopkinsville New-Era.

This splendid company will be seen all of this week, at the Grand Opera House.

The admirers of Otis Skinner, and they are legion in this city, will be gratified to learn that this deservedly popular star has scored a veritable triumph as Lanciotto in his recent revival of Boker's tragedy, "Francesca da Rimini." Mr. Skinner's efforts have always been of a character that have appealed to the intelligent class of our theatre-goers and lovers of high-class dramatic work. In no character in which he has been seen has afforded the actor the various emotions as that of Lanciotto. Of the production nothing but the highest praise has been sounded. The company, including, as it does, such well-known artists as Aubrey Boucicault, Marcia Van Dresser, William Norris, and others of equal merit, is one of immense excellence, the scenery beautiful and the costumes historically correct. Mr. Skinner will be at the Grand on Nov. 14.

Those who have not heard the records the Columbia Phonograph Company is now supplying have no conception of the changes and improvements that have recently been made. The Passing of Cecil Eldridge.

The Georgetown News, in making a notice of the death of Cecil Eldridge, formerly of this city, says:

"It is indeed unfortunate that in the home of civil liberty Cecil should be deprived of his life, but fortunate that Susie and the baby still linger. Cecil was an 18-karat reprobate, and a first-class bum and scoundrel. He came here and joined the Christian church, after which he told the good women he wanted to go to Illinois. They raised him $18. He went, but Cecil, Susie and the baby were shipped back by first freight. He was a constant beggar and annoyed Judge Yates considerably. He kept Sheriff Shuff busy hauling him, Susie and the baby from Scott county to the Bourbon county poor-house. Peace be to his ashes.

The following is from the Carlisle Democrat: Married, E. T. Gaffin and Minnie Munson. Deaths, at Jackstown, son of Dick Sharp; near Barterville, child of Frank Mynhear; Miss Rube Caldwell, 57, died at Moorefield. S. W. Mathers visiting in Bourbon. Newt Rankin bought 25 mules at $100. NATURE SELF-CONSCIOUS.

Helvetia Loquitur:

Giant of old am I,
The rock ribbed earth is my body;
Climb to my hand, my fingers;
These are my hands, my fingers;
The snow is my hair, and the clouds
Gather around at my breathing;
I whisper in wandering winds,
But the avalanche crash is my calling;
When I raise myself anon,
And shake my limbs in the sunlight,
The sweat flows forth in rivers.

Sons and daughters of man
Roam at will upon me,
Climb to my hand, my fingers;
Hide in the hair on my shoulders,
Glide in the blue of my eyes,
In coracles made of the corn husks;
But I heed not their coming and going.

Mystery am I to myself,
Knowing not why, whence, whither,
Knowing not purpose or end,
Of the things that were or shall be;
Only faintly surmising
That I was by another fashioned,
A being vaster than I,
Stronger in the and sinew,
Mightier in body and arm-girth,
Giant of old, thy child,
I greet thee unknown, great Maker.

But a wonder stranger is mine,
From age to age enduring,
As I lie in the night's deep silence,
When the light giver rests in his chamber,
And gaze in the firmament o'er me,
Far from my utmost arm's reach,
Far from the sound of my calling,
And watch in the solemn distance
Those pale fires burning yonder,
Never farther or nearer,
Never brighter or dimmer,
Burning forever and ever.

This is the wonder unceasing,
This is the Light that appalls me.
—William Harbutt Dawson, in Westminster Gazette.

A PAIR OF SUEDES.

By Harriet Holmes Haslett.

FOR a few minutes they stood before the Kearney street shoe-store window, discussing the relative merits of white satin and suede versus patent leather, Sue, who was of a practical turn of mind, advised the latter.

"Gaudious me, you little hayseed! I couldn't wear black slippers with my white gown. They must be white—either satin or suede. Come, let us go in; I can only tell by trying them on."

Turning hurriedly, they precipitated themselves forcibly against a man who had been gazing dejectedly into the neighboring window at the rows of many boots and shoes. More especially were his eyes directed toward the dancing pumps—not that he admired them, nor even wished to buy them, but, nevertheless, fired by a noble resolve, he turned to enter, just as the two girls finished their little dialogue, which he partially overheard. Two pair of eyes flashed indignantly into his. Bee's brown ones were milder than the blue ones of the "little hayseed."

"Great, clumsy thing! Couldn't he look where he was going?"

"Why, Sue; it was as much our fault as his!"

Now the man was neither great nor clumsy, however, much he hoped to be the former in the future and had overcome the latter in his past. Furthermore, the glimpse he had had of the brown eyes gave impetus to his lay—that he would attend to it himself—resolve of purchasing a pair of patent leathers for the cotillion to which he was going, simply to please his friend, Charlie Graham. Hence he ordered and tried on the much-despised articles of attire, in the meantime, casting furtive glances at the purchaser of the dainty pair of white suedes.

Then the two, without a backward look, hurried away to Beatrice Harloe's home on the Heights, leaving the clerk politely assuring them that the parcel would be sent without delay. No sooner had they left the store than the faithless creature turned them over to the clerk who was waiting on the purchaser of the patent leathers, and he, too, hurried away, for a little dinner at the restaurant with his best girl was not to be disturbed for any white suedes in the world.

Half-past eight was sounding by the Harloes' big hall clock, and upstairs the two girls were arraying themselves to the distraction which seeks to kill. "Marie," called Beatrice, to her long-suffering little maid, "have my slippers come? Dear me! what shall I do?"

For the fifth time, Marie descended in quest of the vagrant slippers, and this time returned smiling, with the long-awaited box.

"Open them now and let me put them on awhile and ease them a little before I go," said Bee.

So Marie opened the box, and they beheld a pair of manly patent leathers, slim and graceful, it is true, but never intended for Beatrice's tiny feet. The girls surveyed each other in blank dismay, then solemnly and forcibly there came from Sue the single syllable, "Geel!"

"What shall I do?" cried Beatrice, distractedly. "That wretched clerk, after all his promises, to make such a mistake! I can't go, that's all; I haven't another decent pair!"

"Not go!" exclaimed Sue, "after all my hopes for weeks on this party! Fly, Marie—fly and bring up some bread-crumbs—stale ones. Where are all your old slippers, Bee? We'll choose the best-looking ones and have them cleaned in the shake of a very quickly, I mean!" primly, for Susan was heroically striving to drop all the slang phrases which her life on a western ranch had cultivated.

Out of various boxes an assortment of foot-gear was produced and surveyed by its dejected owner. She immediately pounced upon a pair of white suedes, not so bad after all, and vigorously set herself to work with the bread-crumbs, with such good results that a fairly presentable pair of slippers was produced.

"You extravagant girl," she laughed. "If you had been used as I have, to making one pair do till it is done, you would use up plenty of stale bread. Your dress is so long they'll never show; besides, who would suspect Miss Harloe, who has a new pair for every party, if she likes, to be wearing old ones. They'll never think of looking."

"Oh! you dear little 'Hay,' laughed Beatrice, "you are such a comfort. We must hurry, it would not do to be late when I have to introduce all your partners."

"Hay seeds have their little mission in the world after all, eh, Honey Bee?" quoth Sue.

"I never would have gotten off to this cotillion if it hadn't been for you, that's certain," she answered, as the two went gayly down stairs, leaving the patent leathers, the ignominious cause of all the trouble, lying forgotten on the floor.

Scratch, scratch, went the pen, and sheet after sheet of manuscript fluttered to the floor. The medical students who were to be regaled on the morrow with Dr. John Meredith's address on anatomy were not to be envied, if length were not offset by brilliancy.

Finally the toes are reached. Surely he must be reaching the end. If not the end, the mention of his extremities started a train of thought utterly foreign to the subject in hand, however. With a sigh, he dropped his pen and turned in his chair. Drawing the arm of a skeleton hanging near him affectionately over his shoulder, with the thumbbone he thoughtfully prodded the tobacco in his pipe. "Well, Bonita, old girl, I suppose it's about time I stopped."

The person addressed was accustomed to his confidences and, not being expected to be communicative, preserved a discreet silence. She was always introduced to his friends as "Miss Bonita, the beautiful Indian maiden," and her sole duty in life was to hang suspended there in mid-air, in convenient range, where at any time her thumb could be called into use. Meredith declared that his pipe never smoked as well as when Bonita packed it for him.

Touching his repeater, the faithful little chime rang out—nine-and-twenty! "Great Scott!" he exclaimed, springing to his feet. "Why didn't you give me a hint it was so late? What use are you, anyway, hanging there, twirling your toes, when I should be twirling mine!"

Just then there came a knock at the door, and without waiting for an answer, his friend Graham entered with a rush. "Hello, not ready yet? What have you been about, you old fogey? You'll get no dances if you don't hurry."

"Don't want any. Haven't danced for four years, as I told you," answered John, in the drawling, indifferent tone he always assumed when social matters were discussed.

"Well, you promised me you'd go to this. How do you expect to be a success in your profession if you drop so completely out of social life? Don't you know that two or three conquests to-night mean as many 'calls' in the course of the week?"

"Great Heavens! You don't mean it?" (sarcastically).

"Yes, and I'll wager you haven't even thought of the dancing-shoes you promised me so faithfully to buy."

"There you are wrong, dear boy, as usual. Thought of them just in the nick of time. Open the box there and lend me a hand, will you?" (giving himself a shake). He disappeared into the other end of the long room, which was divided by portiers, and was dignified by the title of sleeping apartment, in this, his home, up five flights of stairs—the climbing of which was all the exercise he needed, he declared.

An astonished silence followed the crackling of the paper, then a burst of hearty laughter.

"What in thunder have you been about, old saw-bones? Some one's been playing a trick on you."

As Charlie finished speaking, Meredith appeared at the portiers, and to his astonished gaze was held up a pair of white suedes, dainty, high-heeled, fit for a fairy. Consternation dire overwhelmed them both, then recollection came to Meredith, swift and sure. A pair of brown eyes glances indignantly into his, then a sweet voice is saying: "They must be white, Sue; either satin or suedes!" Of course, the stupid clerk had mixed them up.

But, great Heavens, where are his? He dare not trust himself to think. In the meantime, Charlie stood with the dainty deceivers poised gingerly in one hand, gazing quizzically at Meredith.

"You've mistaken the box, old man. I did not intend to pry into your secrets, I assure you. Very clumsy of me. Kindly show me the right box."

"Oh, hang it all, dry up! What are you talking about?" almost shouted Meredith, shaken out of his customary calm. "Don't you see what has happened? The clerk has mixed them up, that's all." Then he related the whole story to his unsympathetic friend, who rolled over on the divan in paroxysms of delight, to the detriment of his immaculate evening-dress.

"That's the best I ever heard!" he gasped. "Imagine the scene in the boudoir of the brown-eyed one, when your dainty canoes arrived. Don't stand there petrified. Hurry up, get out your old ones and come along."

"But I haven't any old ones! Gave them all to my small brother long ago. What use have I for dancing shoes?" dejectedly. Now that all possibility of a dance was at an end, he longed most unreasonably for the unattainable. Forlornly, he arrayed himself.

"You'll have to sit out most of your dances—if you get any," said his friend, consolingly; "mine are not engaged. I never take any before half-past ten."

"Nobody will want to dance with me in these thick things," sighed the other, surveying his shoes ruefully.

However, they made a start finally, Charlie gayly arranging future proceedings as they went.

"Now, if the brown eyes are there, what luck. I'm sure to know her; I know everybody. I can see it all—in introduction, start of recognition, hopeless confusion, gallant friend to the rescue—all satisfactorily explained in a moment."

"Never!" ejaculated Meredith, clutching his arm. "Suppose she's a girl who chaffs a fellow unmercifully?"

"Why, she cannot. She's in as much of a box as you are."

"Oh, no, she isn't! She forgot all about me and my patent leathers as soon as she entered the store."

"Well, hope for the best, my afflicted friend," said Charlie.

Presently they reached the brilliantly lighted hall where the first cotillion of the season was under way. Gayly the couples were marching back and forth through the mazes of the figures, and there—surely his eyes did not mislead him—was the "brown-eyed one," demurely leading all that lovely train of followers. Meredith leaned against the door facing, and Graham noticed the look of consternation, almost of fear, upon his face.

"She's here, is she?" he asked.

"Yes, there, leading," he answered, faintly.

"That! Beatrice Harloe! Well, you are a lucky dog! She's the jolliest and sweetest girl on the hill!"

Later on Meredith was introduced, and one glance of the brown eyes was enough. Totally unprepared for the meeting, no sooner did their eyes meet than the remembrance swept over her of the "great clumsy thing" in front of the shoe store. Laughing, she put out her hand: "Oh! Dr. Meredith and I have met before, if rather unceremoniously. You must excuse our haste of this afternoon—we were in such a hurry!"

"It was all my fault, I assure you," he answered, eagerly. So far, she did not connect him in any way with the mistake of the dancing shoes. "I am so late," said Meredith. "I am afraid there is no hope for me on your card; I am not going to dance myself, but I hoped I might find some kind friend who would take pity on me and 'sit out' one occasionally." Once nothing had been further from Meredith's thoughts than the absurd "sitting out" of a dance with a girl; but, now—well, circumstances alter cases, that's all.

"Oh!" she answered, "I was late, too. I have only the cotillion engaged. I will give you one later on." Charlie, who had been an amused spectator, could restrain himself no longer, in spite of an imploring look from his friend.

"Why were you late, Bee? You told me you expected to be here early, on account of your friend."

"Such a funny thing happened," she laughed. "Come here, Sue, and help me tell about it."

Glancing at the young doctor, one look at his conscious face was enough. "Oh!" she cried; "why! you—you are the man!"

Then the tension gave way and the quartet laughed long and merrily.

"What's the joke?" was asked on all sides; but taking Sue hurriedly by the hand, Beatrice made her way to a retired corner, motioning to Graham to bring his friend.

"We must exchange confidences," she said.

"And shoes," murmured Graham, sotto voce. So, with much laughter, and clatter of tongues, the whole affair was made clear, to the mystification of all their friends and acquaintances.

The following year Dr. and Mrs. John Meredith (nee Harloe) set up housekeeping in a cozy flat on Geary street, where there is a mystery still unsolved in the doctor's study. Hanging beside his desk, within convenient reach of his right arm, is the well-known figure of "Miss Bonita," gracefully swinging her toes as of old. But upon those toes are now fitted dainty slippers of white suede, held in place by huge bows of white satin ribbon.

To all inquiries, Bee merrily answers: "Well, if I did throw myself at his head first, he returned the compliment promptly by throwing himself at my feet."—San Francisco Argonaut.

What Was in Him.

"Children," said the teacher, while instructing the class in composition, "you should not attempt any flights of fancy, but simply be yourselves, and write what is in you. Do not imitate any other person's writings or draw inspiration from outside sources."

As a result of this advice Johnny Wise turned in the following composition:

"We should not attempt any flights of fancy, but rite what is in us. In me there is my stummk, lungs, hart, liver, two apples, one piece of pie, one stick of lemon candy, and my dinner."

LECTURE WINS MONEY.

Army Chaplain Makes Plea for Anglo-American Church in Philippines and Is Given $20,000.

An army chaplain the other night delivered a $20,000 lecture. He is Chaplain C. C. Pierce, who is on duty at Fort Monroe, Va., and recently returned from the Philippines, where he worked with great fidelity, and was in charge, in addition to other duties, of the identification of the dead. He established a system which has been of great advantage to the government. Since his return he has received a large number of invitations to lecture, but the serious illness of his wife and his conscientious regard for his duties at Fort Monroe have compelled him to decline such requests.

The war department authorities have been willing that he should lecture on the conditions in the Philippines. On Monday night he lectured on the army and the Philippines before the Church club in Philadelphia.

A day or two after he received a letter from a gentleman, who, with his wife, attended the lecture, and who stated that they proposed to give $20,000 to be applied to the Anglo-American church which was organized by Chaplain Pierce at Manila more than two years ago and which is deserving of public support in this country.

AMERICAN WEDS COUNTESS.

Colonel John M. Read's Bride Was Miss. Alix De Foras, Daughter of Count De Foras.

Announcement was made at Albany, N. Y., the other day of the marriage of Col. John Meredith Read to Countess Alix De Foras. Miss. De Foras is the daughter of Count Amedie De Foras of the Castle of Thuyset, in Savoy, France. Count De Foras was for many years the grand marshal of the court of Bulgaria and a great political power in that country. He resigned the position when the child of the prince was forced to become a member of the Greek church, as he represented the Catholic party. He afterward retired to the castle of Thuyset, where he devoted himself to his books until his death.

Col. Read is the son of Gen. John Meredith Read, adjutant general at the outbreak of the civil war, consul general of this country to France during the Franco-German war and commune and acting consul general for Germany; then minister to Greece, in which post he distinguished himself. His grandfather, John Meredith Read, LL. D., was chief justice and one of the most distinguished lawyer-jurists of Pennsylvania.

MONUMENT TO GEN. HARRISON

Steps Taken at Indianapolis to Honor the Memory of the Late Ex-President.

A systematic movement was inaugurated at Indianapolis, Ind., the other day for honoring Benjamin Harrison with a public monument. The Commercial club, of which Gen. Harrison was a member, will act in the matter as a body, and it is understood that the board of trade and other civic bodies will join in the movement.

It is intended that the monument shall represent the sentiments of all the people of the state, and not the members of any political party. The first suggestion was for a statue to be placed near the soldiers' monument in Monument place, but the park is already crowded, and it is now proposed that it be erected in front of the new federal building, which will be begun in a short time. It is believed that congress will make an appropriation to aid in erecting the monument.

FUNNY FOLKS

Only Wise Course.

"Let us crown a queen of beauty," said the enthusiastic young man who was interested in the entertainment they were getting up for social diversion.

"By all means," replied the wise and thoughtful youth.

"It should be the first thing on the programme," continued the first.

"Oh, foolish man!" retorted the other. "Think of the fun we will have so long as every girl thinks she has a show for the honor and of the row there will be when a selection is made. Let us rather make it the last feature of the entertainment."—Chicago Post.

What Was in Him.

"Children," said the teacher, while instructing the class in composition, "you should not attempt any flights of fancy, but simply be yourselves, and write what is in you. Do not imitate any other person's writings or draw inspiration from outside sources."

As a result of this advice Johnny Wise turned in the following composition:

"We should not attempt any flights of fancy, but rite what is in us. In me there is my stummick, lungs, hart, liver, two apples, one piece of pie, one stick lemon candy and my dinner."—Baltimore American.

Bound to Get Out of It.

Mrs. Blinks (after breakfast)—My dear, I wish you'd stop into Biggs, Store & Co.'s and order seven-eighths of a yard more of that cloth I got yesterday, and three-quarters—

Mr. Blinks—I'm afraid I'll forget if you give me the items now. Just speak to me over the telephone this afternoon.

Office Boy (in the afternoon)—Please, sir, Mrs. Blinks is at the 'phone, and wants to talk to you.

Mr. Blinks (hurriedly)—Say—er—tell her I'm drunk.—N. Y. Weekly.

Language of Flowers.

"There's a language of flowers, they say," said he.

"Now, which shall I choose to speak for me?"

She blushed like a rose ere she found her voice.

"Well—orange blossoms would be my choice." (And that's how Cupid was made to rejoice.)—Philadelphia Bulletin.

VERY NEIGHBORLY.

The Neighbor's Boy—Please, Miss Jinks, mom says if you'll lend her a cup of sugar an' yer lawn mower an' some stickin' plaster an' a few eggs she'll send back your sewin' machine.—Chicago American.

Merely a Tradition.

We say that farmer folk are queer. Their ways we love to "josh." Yet, truly, did you ever hear a farmer say "begosh?"—Washington Star.

A Dear Friend.

Morgue Keeper—Looking for anyone?

Visitor—O'm lookin' fur me dear friend, Moik Moolighan, who's mysteriously disappeared. It ud break me heart to foind him dead. Oi loved that mon like a brother.

"Has he any marks by which you could identify him?"

"Yis; he do have a big scar on his forehead where Oi hit 'im wid a brick."—N. Y. Weekly.

One for Bobby.

"I understand," said little Bobby, looking up from his lesson and keeping a forefinger temporarily between the pages of his history, "that there is only one man before whom the czar of Russia must take off his hat."

"Why, yes—that's so. Your book tells all about it, eh? Who is it, did you say?"

"His hairdresser," said Bobby, getting busy.—N. Y. Times.

A Bad Error.

"See here, Lyons, you've ruined me. In this account of the ball I said that 'Mrs. Bunkerton, the famous lecturer on dress, wore nothing that was remarkable.' You've put it: 'Mrs. Bunkerton wore nothing. That was remarkable!' You can go to the cashier and get your money. We can't stand a man like you around here."—Harlem Life.

Failed on the Test.

"No, Mr. Whipeord," said the Boston young woman, rising. "It is useless to urge me. I had begun to hope that we were congenial, but I see my error. I cannot marry you. I could never endure the daily companionship of a man who pronounces gen-e-a-l-o-gy 'ge-ne-o-l-o-gy.'"—Chicago Tribune.

Given as a Reason.

"But he doesn't seem to know much about the topics of the day."

"Well, no wonder. He got all his education in a night school."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Knew the Difference.

"Well, you're a veterinary surgeon—what do you know about a horse?" asked a brow-beating attorney.

"I don't pretend to be a horse doctor," replied the witness, "but I know a good deal of the nature of the animal."

"That means to say you know a horse from a jackass when you see them," continued the lawyer, in the same style, looking knowing and glancing triumphantly around.

"Oh, yes, just so!" (drawled out the intended victim, gazing intently at his legal tormentor. "For instance, I should never take you for a horse!"—Tit-Bits.

A Stirring Tonic.

A fellow confined in the goal. Once turned most exceedingly paol.

"What is it?" they cried.

And the fellow replied:

"I thought I had swallowed a whaal."—Baltimore American.

EVEN THERE.

Captain—Yonder is Dinkydink Point, the first view we get of America. See it?

Lord Sayus—Now; can't say I see the point.

Captain—That's so—you're English!—Chicago Journal.

The Nightmare.

The nightmare comes to plague us when

The lights are all put out;

We find ourselves in need of help

And try in vain to shout.

We suffer all the agonies

Of martyrs at the stake.

And just as all seems lost, at last

We manage to awake;

Then in a trice the awful woes

We thought we had dispensed—

The nightmare comes to teach us that

Our troubles might be worse.

—Chicago Record-Herald.

Evidence to the Contrary.

"Do you think that a man is always better off for a college education?"

"No," answered the housewife, rather sharply. "This morning I asked a man who came around with a wagon whether he had any nice, fresh eggs. He merely looked at me reproachfully and said: 'Madam, might I be permitted to observe that fresh eggs are always nice eggs, and nice eggs are always fresh.'"—Washington Star.

Haunted.

As I sit at fall of evening,

Musing 'fore the open fire,

'Joying thoughts as light and flitting

As the blades of the pyre,

Lo! appears to me a figure

Standing in the flickering light,

And I say in trembling accents:

"Art thou come again to-night?"

Speak! who art thou? what thine errand?

Answer comes without delay:

"I'm Jim Brown, the tailor's son, sir;

Here's that bill. Pa wants his pay!"

—Detroit Free Press.

TAKING IT BACK.

Victim—Say, you ought to change your vocation. You'd make a good butcher.

Barber—Sir, that's an insult.

Victim—Oh, all right. I'll take back what I said. No doubt you would make a rather clumsy butcher.

—Chicago Daily News.

In the Pantry.

Little Tommy was stealing jam.

He couldn't deny the fact.

For his mother happened to catch him

Red-handed in the act.

—Chicago Tribune.

Not the Way He Wanted It.

"You promised me a kiss. May I take it?"

"Surely," she replied, "a first-class baseball player like you would derive no satisfaction from simply taking a kiss. Stand off across the room and I'll throw you one."

Even meritorious proficiency in some line may be regretted at times.

—Chicago Post.

Canada's Wood-Pulp Exports.

Canada's exports of pulpwood and woodpulp in 1900 amounted to $3,335,329, of which $966,920 was sent to Great Britain and $2,368,409 to the United States, $66,194 going to other countries.

Couldn't Use Him.

Cholly—So you think I am too slow for any use?

She—Yes. You don't even make the other young men jealous.—The Smart Set.

PUBLISHED EVERY TUESDAY AND FRIDAY

SWIFT CHAMP, EDITOR AND OWNER.

It will be only seven weeks from tomorrow till Christmas.

VOTE early and often and then "go way back and sit down."

With Bourbon county Democrats the campaign is over, except the voting and shouting.

A VOTE for Al. Thompson for Representative means a vote for the best protection of all that is dear to you.

THE Democrats of New York claim a victory for the entire city ticket by from 30,000 to 40,000 majority.

If you haven't voted yet, don't delay. Go up to the polls and put your mark under the rooster's feet. Go this morning.

THE National Fox Hunters' Association has issued invitations to their annual meeting November 18, to be held at Estill Springs.

A SCHOOL board ticket will be voted on to-day. The ticket is made up as follows: N. F. Brent, C. M. Thomas, R. P. Dow, F. P. Walker, W. F. Talbot and T. T. Templin.

BOURBON county Democrats have placed that county, aided greatly by Republican apathy, away beyond any earthly chance of the enemy getting even the most indistinct taste of political honors.—Lexington Democrat.

ROOSEVELT has changed the official designation of the President's mansion from the "exclusive mansion," to "the White House," since he took Booker Washington home with him to dinner. It is presumed that hereafter only "white" people will be expected to dinner.

THE Ohio Democrats take a hopeful view of the situation, and claim they will carry the four cities of Cleveland, Cincinnati, Toledo and Columbus, assuring the election of the State ticket and the majority of the legislative candidates. The Republicans, however, claim that they will elect their entire ticket.

MR. C. C. McCHORD, State chairman of the Democratic Campaign Committee, states that he is confident the Democrats of Kentucky will secure a safe majority in both houses of the General Assembly to-day. He also predicts that in Louisville and Jefferson county the entire Democratic ticket will be elected by a good plurality.

GOVERNOR DURBIN, of Indiana, has given out his former decision on the requisition for W. S. Taylor and Charles Finley, the Kentucky refugees. The Governor refused to honor the requisitions, and in a column statement set forth his reasons, which are similar to those advanced by the late Governor Mount.

THE BOURBON NEWS is now turning out a large quantity of job work. Having lately put in a new job press, we are now better prepared than ever to execute the best of work in the latest styles and on short notice. If you are in need of anything in the way of bill heads, envelopes, letter heads, dodgers, pamphlets, etc., give us a call, get our prices, and we will satisfy you in every particular.

GEORGE WASHINGTON at his death was regarded as the richest man in the United States. How insignificant his reputed $500,000 worth of property looks, compared to the vast accumulations of the multi-millionaires of our day. John D. Rockefeller, for instance, is worth anywhere from one hundred to three hundred millions, and Carnegie, after giving away a large slice of his wealth, is quoted as still having two hundred and eighty millions set aside for gifts.

Weather Signals.

For the convenience of the public, THE NEWS, will give the weather signals, which are being displayed on the City Hall every day. They are as follows: White Flag, clear or fair; Blue Flag, rain or snow; White and Blue Flag, local rains; Black Triangular Flag, White with Black Center above it, wet weather, cold wave; White Flag, with Black Center, cold wave.

We take from an exchange some sound sense which we reproduce here:

"Every day on the streets may be seen young men who are floundering about, ignorant of a trade of profession and no idea of business training. They are eminently capable of learning whatever they would set their heads to learn, but they are just loafing their time, stunting their mental capacities by disuse until soon they will find themselves adrift in a busy world with no knowledge of any business, trade or profession, and their only support for a living will be a chance day's labor. Parents who neglect their boy's business training and fail to prepare him for an active place in the world, are laying up for themselves a heavy share of blame and malediction.

The above named Company, composed of business men of Paris, has recently been incorporated, and for the purpose of developing their oil and mineral leases, offer for sale a limited number of shares of stock.

The Company's holdings consist of leases on nearly 7,000 acres of land, nearly all of which are located in Barren and Allen Counties, Kentucky. Their lands have been carefully selected, some of which adjoin lands on which are Oil wells that have produced for years a very fine grade of oil. Their leases were secured before the present rush and excitement began in those Counties, and are choice lands, and valuable.

Lands, adjacent to Company's, secured recently by Eastern capitalists at large price, are now being developed as fast as machinery can be put on grounds. Those desiring stock can obtain same by applying to Secretary or any officers of the Company.

You Do, or You Don't Need Glasses

The eye being a rather delicate organ, great care should be exercised in the selection of proper glasses. Many believe that glasses should be restored to only when the sight becomes so defective as not to be able to do without. This is a great mistake which must be combated. Whenever there is unmistakable evidence of the need of their aid, they should be used. A neglect of this rule sometimes produces mischief which results in serious trouble if the course be persisted in.

Our Dr. C. H. BOWEN having just returned from taking a special course in Optics from one of the best specialists in New York, is prepared to do the best of work, having the latest improved methods of fitting. Examinations free. Next visit Thursday, Nov. 14, 1901.

A FLOW OF ELOQUENCE.

A flow of eloquence is most necessary to describe the good qualities of our shoes. All we ask of you is to come in and look at what we have to offer.

If they are not all right in style and quality for the prices asked—don't buy. We feel confident that our lines of shoes are reliable and right up-to-date, and we don't ask you exorbitant profits for them. We are showing a very snappy Enamel Shoe for boys at $3.00, and Enamel and Patent Leather Shoes in little boys' sizes, 9 to 13½, at $2.00. They will please the boys—same style and quality as is found in men's four and five dollar shoes. Our boys' Shoes range in price from $1.50 to $3.00 and are the reliable kind. We guarantee solid leather and good workmanship.

MARY, the bright little six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Murphy, of East Paris, is very low with meningitis.

MARY SCOTT, a colored woman, of Ruckerville, aged 83 years, died last week. She left five generations of children, and had great grand children.

It is said that there is considerable scarlet fever in and around the city just now. Parents can not be too careful with their children, lest they contract this dreadful malady.

THE house on the corner of Third and Pleasant streets, occupied by Henry Mitchell, as a blacksmith shop, was sold by the Tucker heirs, on Friday, to Theodore Sallee, for $2,000.

OCTOBER was quite remarkable as well as a delightful month. There were only two cloudy days, and only a half an inch of rain, leaving the deficiency 2-13 inches. The average daily temperature was above the normal, and once the mercury went to 81. November came in cloudy, but soon cleared off.

MISS GERTRUDE RENICK came near meeting with what might have been a serious accident on Friday morning last. She was out horse-back riding when the saddle slipped and her foot caught and she was dragged some distance, when rescued by some one passing along. Luckily, the horse was gentle and showed no disposition to run away.

THE NEWS acknowledges the receipt of a handsome half-tone picture of Mrs. Wm. F. Schooler, who is a Republican candidate for enrolling clerk of the lower house. Mrs. Schooler's husband and the writer of this are good friends and if no Democrat wants the place we are for the little lady every time. She is the assistant editor of the Advance-Kentuckian, published at Morehead, Ky.

WHILE there is some complaint at times of the way the post-office is run, in this city, some consideration is due the Postmaster and his assistants. The rules of the post-office department require that quiet be observed in the entrance of every post-office during the opening and distribution of mails. It is impossible for the post-office clerks to perform their tasks expeditiously while thoughtless people throng the office and engage in conversation and laughter.

WATCH will be kept November 13-15 for the Leonid swarm of shooting stars, which has been looked for in vain for several years past. According to eminent astronomers their path may have changed, thus bringing them a year later. The Leonids are a group of meteors which are supposed to revolve about the sun, and to be seen by those on earth every 33 years, approximately, when the earth's path crosses their path. As they have not been seen in that time, it would seem their path has been changed, though how, no one knows. There is a possibility they may yet come this year. If so, they will be seen at the best after midnight, November 13, 14 and 15.

There was a fair crowd in town. M. J. Murphy & Co., make the following report of sales: There were about 250 cattle on the market. Rader, of Falmouth, sold 19 head 800-pound cattle for 3½ cents; Hibler Bros., sold 29 1100-pound cattle to C. Alexander, Jr., at 4 cents; B. F. Bedford sold 28 head 800-pound cattle at $3.65; R. T. Ford sold 17 head of 1,000-pound cattle at $4.44 head; thirty-five cows and calves sold at $30 to $45; twenty head sold by B. F. Bedford to T. J. and G. W. Redmon, price private; Mitchell & Hays sold 17 head yearlings at $3.50 per hundred to Jonas Weil, which were resold to Talbot Bros., at $3.60.

Daughters of the Confederacy

The fifth annual convention of the Kentucky Division of the Daughters of the Confederacy will be held November 21 and 22, at Elizabethtown. Much interest will be under discussion and a full attendance from the various chapters of both delegates and visitors is earnestly desired. Railroads have given rates of one and one-third fares. Delegates pay full fare for tickets to Elizabethtown, receiving from the agent a certificate.

This certificate must be signed by the agent of Elizabethtown and the return ticket will cost one-third the usual rate. Notify agents in advance, so receipts will be granted. Delegates will be cordially and hospitably entertained at Elizabethtown and receive every attention.

THE Grace Rentfrow Company will present the four-act society drama of "Queen," at the Opera House, to-night. Manger Porter has arranged to have the election returns read from the stage. Ladies will be admitted free again to-night, if accompanied by a paid 30-cent ticket.

Our Judith.

Miss Judith Hukil, the pretty little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hukil of Lexington, formerly of Paris, made a decided hit Friday evening on the stage. The graceful little lass took the part of Natiline in the "Banker's Daughter," presented by the Baldwin-Melville company making her first appearance in drama. It is but fair to the bright little girl to say that she held her own with eminent success with the professional company that presented the piece and was easy and graceful as if she had been on the stage for years. Her friends are proud of her.

She appeared in the bill Saturday night also, taking the part of Paul, a little colored scamp, who is always in trouble, in the Southern play, "Louisiana." She has plenty of work to do and it is a certainty that she will do it in proper style.

W. C. T. U. Meeting.

The State Convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union has been in session in this city, since Friday night last. The attendance has been large and the meetings most interesting. At the opening session on Friday night there were devotional exercises, addresses by the state president, Mrs. Beauchamp and others. The musical features during the meeting have been very enjoyable. The delegates have met with that hospitality for which our good people are noted, and we hope will leave with a fond remembrance of our good housewives and a good impression of our little city. Such meetings can not fail to do a vast amount of good to any community, and the more we have of them the better.

On Sunday afternoon the workers of the Union visited our county jail and held devotional services with the prisoners confined therein. Prayers were offered and short talks indulged in, and comforting songs left the prisoners with thoughts that may make them better men.

"G. V.," in writing to the Lexington Leader, of the Women's Temperance Union being held in this city, says: "This promises to be a notable affair as some of the celebrities of the National organization are confidently expected to be present. Paris—nor is Paris alone in this respect—Paris needs such influences as an organization like this carries with it."

It is to be regretted that so many praise-worthy moral attractions are to be set before the people of our little city during the same week. It seems impossible that very large numbers should attend each of these gatherings. In large cities such conflict is barely noticeable.

As used in the Woman's Christian Board of Missions and in the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, the word "Christian" must be taken in the former to mean the Church of the Disciples or Reformers; in the latter, to have its wide and more general significance, embracing all who accept the Christ as Savior. The Christian Temperance Union numbers thousands on thousands who are not members of "The Christian church."

POST OFFICE AFFAIRS.

Re-Establishment of the Pneumatic Tube Service Recommended.

The Star Mail Service—There Were 825 Casualties in the Railway Mail Service During the Past Year.

Washington, Nov. 4.—The annual report of the second assistant postmaster general, William S. Shallenberg, made public Sunday, urges regular direct fast mail service between the Pacific coast and the Orient, the re-establishment of pneumatic tube service generally, and the closer separation of city mail by postal clerks on railway trains rather than by clerks of the mailing division after its arrival in the general post office. Under the last-named proposition the entire force engaged in distributing the mail ready for the carriers would be under one management, and congestion in a post office could be overcome by the temporary detail of railway mail clerks off duty. The city distribution in postal cars has been assumed entirely by the railway mail service, supplanting the former practice of having clerks from the city post office go out some distance on the road to meet incoming trains. Constant demands are now being made for still closer separation by having the railway mail clerks or superintendent in charge take the outgoing mail from the public and see that it is expeditiously dispatched, and also deliver the incoming mail properly made up for the carriers. Mr. Shallenberg suggests for the present a test of the practical operation of this proposition at post offices whose gross receipts are a half million dollars or more a year. Contracts for star mail service beginning next July shall provide for delivering mail into boxes along nearly all of the routes. The practice of granting to contractors general permission to sub-let their star route service has been discontinued. There were 825 casualties in the railway mail service during the year.

GOV. DURBIN REFUSES.

Will Not Grant Requisition For Extradition of Wm. S. Taylor and Charles W. Finley.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 4.—Gov. W. T. Durbin, in a lengthy communication addressed to Gov. J. C. Beckham, of Kentucky, refuses to grant the requisition for the extradition of ex-Gov. William S. Taylor and Charles W. Finley, who have been indicted by Kentucky courts for complicity in the murder of Gov. William Goebel.

The governor declares in his letter that there is persecution, and that a "mass of self-evident perjury reflects poisoned passion of the court and jury."

FIERCE FOREST FIRES.

The Woods South of Poplar Bluff Has Been Burning For Three Days—Stock in Danger.

Poplar Bluff, Mo., Nov. 4.—The fiercest forest fires since 1835 are raging a few miles south of this city. The woods have been in flames for three days, and thousands of cattle and horses are in danger. Farmers and stockmen have turned out en masse to fight the flames, but they have made very little progress. The fire will cause a famine for feed for cattle this winter on account of the drought this summer cutting crop short.

Adm. Villamil's Remains.

New York, Nov. 4.—The Spanish steamship Montserrat, on her way from Havana, came into port Sunday with her flags at half-mast. In a mortuary apartment aboard the liner is the body of Adm. Villamil, who lost his life during the encounter with the American ships at Santiago. The body is on the way to Spain. Before the Montserrat leaves, the Spanish consul and many of the Spanish residents of this city will attend memorial services aboard the steamer.

Buffalo Exposition Ended.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 4.—At midnight Saturday night President Milburn pressed a button, and the electric current in every light connected with the general illumination of the Pan-American exposition was turned off, leaving the grounds in almost total darkness. Sunday morning the circuit connecting the grounds with the Niagara falls power house was cut off.

Detroit Baseball Club Sold.

Detroit, Nov. 4.—It became known Sunday that the control of the Detroit Baseball club Saturday passed from Messrs. Burns and Stallings to S. F. Angus, a local capitalist, when the Peninsular Savings bank accepted a check for $13,600 for the stock that institution held as collateral for a loan made Burns and Stallings early in the past season.

Attacked the Dowager Empress.

Peking, Nov. 4.—While the dowager empress was embarking to cross the river before entering Ho-Nan, an assassin attempted to murder her, and killed an attendant with a spear before he was cut down. The court has left Ho-Nan en route for Peking.

Edward S. Stokes Dead.

New York, Nov. 4.—Edward S. Stokes, for a quarter of a century a noted figure in New York life, and the slayer of James Fisk, Jr., died at the home of his sister, Mrs. Mary McNutt.

DESPERATE DEED.

Colored Man Fired Into a Crowd at a Meeting—Two Men Killed and Others Wounded.

Roanoke, Va., Nov. 4.—Meager details were received here Sunday from the little town of Ferrum, Va., about 30 miles from Roanoke, on the Roanoke & Southern railroad, of a tragedy at that place Saturday night. A Negro named William Hale took exception to some remarks made by a white man at a political meeting, and leaving the hall went to his home where he armed himself with a double-barreled shotgun, loaded with buckshot. He returned to the place where the speaking was being held and fired both barrels into the crowd. A white man named Robinett, who was the village blacksmith, was killed instantly, and John Thomas, colored, received wounds from which he died shortly afterward. Two other men, both white, but names thus far not learned here, were seriously and probably fatally wounded.

Hale made his escape and thus far has not been captured, though the country is being scoured for miles around by indignant citizens. Bloodhounds were sent to the scene Sunday morning. There are no trains on the Roanoke and Southern road on Sunday, and the telegraph office is closed. Hale is said to be a desperate character.

ISLAND OF LYTE.

The Conditions There Are Annoying to Gen. Smith—Smuggling Supplies.

Manila, Nov. 4.—Advices from Catabogan, Samar, says it is well known that, in spite of the fact that all ports of Samar are closed, supplies still reach the insurgents. Most of this work is done during dark nights by small boats from the Island of Lyte. Every available gunboat is now endeavoring to prevent this.

The capture of Lukban's commissary has proved a great blow to the insurrection, as it renders future supplies very precarious.

Conditions in the Island of Lyte are annoying to Gen. Smith. A large number of junks are used with the express object of aiding the insurgents in Samar, covering the movements of fugitives and landing provisions and clothing.

SENATOR CLARK.

Rated By a Mining Paper as the Richest Man in the World—Two and a Half Billions.

Phoenix, Ariz., Nov. 4.—The American Mining News contains the following article about the great United Verde mine, the property of Senator W. H. Clark, which, if correct, would indicate that it is probably the richest mine and he the richest man in the world:

"It has only lately come to light that the average value of the ore taken from the United Verde is $75 per ton in all values—gold, silver and copper. This mine, so far as has been developed, including explorations and diamond drilling below the present workings, shows an immense ore chimney, 400 by 600 feet across, that has been explored by shafts, tunnels and drill holes to a depth of 1,400 feet.

FLOUR DESTROYED.

Ninety-Six Carloads at Manitowoc, Wis., Burned—Loss $125,000—Firemen Overcome.

Manitowoc, Wis., Nov. 4.—Seventy-three carloads of flour on track and 23 carloads in the warehouse of the Wisconsin Central Railroad Co. were destroyed by fire Sunday night, together with the warehouse and dock property of the road. The loss will reach $125,000, fully covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is not known.

Gust. Boeder and Louis Wilkowski, firemen, were overcome by the intense heat, and were rescued with difficulty. Wilkowski's condition is serious.

Gave Birth to a Son.

Brussels, Nov. 4.—Princess Elizabeth, who was married October 2, 1900, to Prince Albert, her presumptive to the throne of Belgium, Sunday gave birth to a son, who will be christened Leopold. In the course of the afternoon the king visited Prince Albert to congratulate him upon the event. He expressed his joy and promised to act as godfather.

Thanksgiving Day Proclamation.

Washington, Nov. 4.—President Roosevelt issued a proclamation fixing Thursday, November 28, as a day of national thanksgiving and prayer.

Wants an Answer.

Copenhagen, Nov. 4.—The United States has asked Denmark for a decisive answer to the United States offer to purchase the Danish West Indies. The Danish government will not make a reply before November 30.

A Big Disaster.

London, Nov. 4.—It is announced in a dispatch to a news agency from St. Petersburg that scores of fishing boats were wrecked, and that 170 men were drowned during a recent storm on Lake Raikal.

FRANCE THREATENS.

War Vessels Are on the Way to Turkish Waters.

Turkey Has Ordered the Completion With All Haste of the Defenses at Salonika, Smyrna, and Dardanelles Entrance.

Paris, Nov. 1.—The officials of the French foreign office confirm the report that a division of the French Mediterranean fleet, composed of three battleships and two cruisers, under the command of Adm. Caillaud, has proceeded from Toulon to the Levant to make a naval demonstration against Turkey. A foreign office official in communicating the foregoing to a Paris correspondent here, said: "The squadron sailed with sealed orders, and proceeds first to a Greek port, the island of Syra. I think, where the admiral will receive definite instructions as to carrying out his sealed orders. I am not at liberty to say what the sealed orders are, but the seizure of customs at Smyrna would probably be a very effective way of convincing the sultan that France's patience is exhausted, and that we have decided to enforce an immediate execution of the Turkish government's engagements."

Adm. Caillaud's squadron consists of the armored cruisers, Admiral Pothuan, Chanzy and Latouche-Treville, the second-class cruisers Du Chayla and Cassard, and the third-class cruiser Galilee. The crews aggregate 2,286 men, but the vessels will also carry landing parties.

A Constantinople telegram received by way of Philippopolis asserts that the sultan has resolved to defy the French government.

Paris, Nov. 4.—Sunday morning M. Delcasse, minister of foreign affairs, telegraphed M. Bapst, councillor of the French embassy in Constantinople, directing him to present Sunday Tewfik Pasha, Ottoman minister of foreign affairs, a note, asking how the Turkish government proposes to pay the Lorando claim and demanding the execution of the sultan's irade dealing with that matter.

The note will also request satisfaction regarding the rights of France, which are defined in the various capitulations and treaties, and which in some cases have not been respected and in others have been encroached upon by Turkey.

It is expected that Adm. Caillaud will be joined en route by the torpedo cruiser Condor, which is stationed in Cretan waters, and may be met by the torpedo dispatch boat Vautour, which is stationed at Constantinople.

It is also probable that the armored cruiser Admiral Charner, which arrived at Port Said, October 31, from the far east, is being held there in order to join Adm. Caillaud if needed. It is further reported that three other warships are held in readiness at Toulon to reinforce him should their presence be necessary.

Dispatches from Rome assert that the second division of the Italian Mediterranean squadron, which, as announced Saturday, left for Turkish waters with the supposed object of counterbalancing the French naval demonstration, will join the first division, which has been cruising in the eastern Mediterranean for some time.

It appears also that the Greek warships, Psara, Hydra, Spetsai and Euzotas, are now at Smyrna, where is also the Russian Mediterranean squadron.

According to dispatches from Toulon all the officers and men of the garrison now on leave of absence, have been ordered to rejoin their respective commands immediately. Three transports are preparing to receive troops.

THE MISS STONE CASE.

Smakamov Missionaries Fear She Will Be Murdered By Abductors After Ransom Is Paid.

Constantinople, Nov. 1.—The Turkish government is already preparing to resist the anticipated demand of the United States for repayment of the ransom necessary to secure the release of Miss Ellen M. Stone, the abducted American missionary. The porte repudiates all responsibility for the kidnaping of Miss Stone, and maintains that the United States has no claim against Turkey, and that, therefore, the latter is justified in refusing to recoup the United States for the money expended in her rescue.

Sofia, Nov. 2.—The best method of transmitting the ransom demanded by the brigands for the release of Miss Ellen M. Stone, the abducted American missionary, and of assuring the safety of the captives, are the matters now engaging the attention of the Smakamov missionaries who are negotiating with the kidnapers. It is felt that unusual precautions are necessary in order to safeguard Miss Stone and the others, as there is undoubtedly danger that the captives will be murdered after the ransom is paid.

Publicly Humiliated.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—There was an intensely dramatic scene in Holy Name cathedral Sunday when, in the presence of fully 1,000 parishioners, Jeremiah J. Crowley, the excommunicated Roman Catholic priest, was publicly humiliated by order of the authorities of the church.

Youngest Grandma.

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 4.—Mrs. Jas. P. Carleton, of Iowa Falls, aged 29, became a grandmother Sunday, and claims to be the youngest grandmother in the northwest.

A CENSUS REPORT.

Number of Persons of School, Militia and Voting Ages in the States and Territories.

Washington, Nov. 2.—The census report on school, militia and voting ages for all states and territories shows the following summary for the country as a whole:

Persons of school age, 5 to 20 years, 26,110,789, of whom 24,897,130 are native born, 22,490,211 are whites and 13,086,160 are males; males of militia age, 16,360,363, of whom 13,132,280 are native born and 14,495,396 are white, and males of voting age, 21,329,819, of whom 16,227,285 are native born and 19,036,143 are white. Of the total number of males 21 years of age and over 2,326,255 are illiterates. Of the 16,227,285 native born males, 21 years of age and over, 1,706,293 are illiterate, and of the 5,102,534 foreign born, 620,002 are illiterate. Native white males of voting age who are of foreign parentage show a relative increase in their proportion since 1890, while the colored males of voting age have increased throughout the northern and western sections, with a few exceptions, like California, where there has been a large decrease in Chinese population.

In many southern states, especially Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Louisiana, the colored element of voting age shows a decreased proportion. Foreign white males of voting age show an increased proportion in all New England, except Vermont. There has been a relative decrease in all of the remaining states and territories, except New Jersey. A little over 28 per cent of the entire alien population of the country is illiterate. This is notably so in Louisiana, where they constitute nearly one-half of the aliens. The statistics show that the average number of persons to each potential voter range from 3.1 to 3.5 in the North Atlantic states, 3.4 to 3.6 in the North Central states, 4 to 4.4 persons to each potential voter in the South Central states, from 3.3 to 4.7 in the South Atlantic states, from 2.4 to 4.1 in the Western states, and 1.7 to 1.9 in Alaska and Hawaii.

STRENGTHENING THE NAVY.

Secretary Long Recommends the Construction of 40 More Vessels of All Classes.

Washington, Nov. 2.—Over and above the four warships for which congress directed him last session to prepare plans, as a basis of appropriation at the next session, Secretary Long has before the board of naval construction recommendations looking to authorization by congress of the building of 40 more naval vessels of all classes from battleships down to tug boats. The plans for the two armored cruisers and two battleships, projected by congress last session, already have been prepared and look to the construction of about 16,000-ton battleships and 14,000-ton cruisers.

The board's complete plan is: Three sea-going battleships of about 16,000 tons displacement, two armored cruisers of about 14,500 tons displacement, six gunboats of about 1,200 tons, six gunboats of about 600 tons, six gunboats of about 200 tons, two colliers of about 15,000 tons, one repair ship of about 7,500 tons, six training ships of about 2,000 tons, four picket boats of about 650 tons, and four tug boats.

Meanest Man in Kansas.

Not long ago the wife of a western Kansas politician asked him to lay aside politics long enough one day to dig the potatoes in the garden. He agreed to do it. After digging for a few minutes he went into the house and said he had found a coin. He washed it off and it proved to be a silver quarter. He put it in his jeans and went back to work. Presently he went to the house again and said he had found another coin. He washed the dirt off it. It was a silver half dollar. He put it in his jeans. "I have worked pretty hard," said he to his wife. "I guess I'll take a short nap." When he awoke he found that his wife had dug all the rest of the potatoes. But she found no coins. It then dawned upon her that she had been "worked."—Kansas City Journal.

CHRYSLIDES.

Tenacious now lies the dwelling of clay,
Fallen its walls to eternal decay;
Darkened the windows, and silent the door,
No step soundeth now on the echoing
floor;
Yainly we listen for answering tone—
The casket is empty, the jewel gone;
Fenderly, silently, lay it away,
Till thunders the trump of the Judgment
Day.

'Tis the end, I said; then a worm I found,
Crawling low and slow on the darksome
ground;

No hint of unfolding beauty was there
As I laid it aside with thoughtful care;
When to its hiding-place again I went
Its shroud was spun, its life seemed surely spent—

Prophetic vision it brought me then,
Foretelling the end of the ways of men.

But a day broke fair in the shining Spring
When the flowers awoke, and the birds
must sing;
Deep in my brooding heart hope stirred;
when lo!

A wondrous omen glided e'en the glow—
There came a stir and beat of wings that slept—
A widening crack—and from its bondage
crept

A creature fair, pausing in new delight,
Then away, and away, in Freedom's flight.

Thou, too, O Soul! hast endured with thy race,
Rendered thou, likewise, thy chrysalis case;
Thy prototype here hath conquered its fate.

Risen with joy to a better estate;
God hath created the worm and the man;
How then believe that the marvelous plan
Holds for the worm so much, but only dust
For man, as he eateth his hard-wrung crust?

Then regret not the falling home of clay,
Recall not the feet that have gone their way;

But oh, for the knowledge that soul has gained!
And oh, for the wisdom by it attained!

Knowledge hath power—to it now are revealed
Mysteries deep, that Time's aeons concealed—

Therefore, triumphantly, bear him away,
Till thunders the trump of the Judgment
Day.

CHAPTER III.

At one of the desert stations in the Humboldt Valley a physician boarded the train under telegraphic orders from the company and went some distance up the road.

He had brought lint and bandages
and soothing lotions, but in several cases said no change was advisable,
that, with handkerchiefs contributed by the passengers and bandages made from surplus shirts, little Miss Ray had extemporized well and had skillfully treated her bewildered patients.

Questioned and complimented both,
Miss Ray blushing admitted that she had studied "First Aid to the Wounded" and had had some instructions in the post hospitals of more than one big frontier post. Passengers had ransacked bags and trunks and presented spare clothing to the few recruits whom the garments would fit. But most of the men were shoeless and blanketed when morning dawned, and all were thankful
when served with coffee and a light breakfast, though many even then were too much excited and some in too much pain to eat.

Mellen, the laughing and joyous lad
of yesterday, was nursing a blistered hand and arm and stalking about the car in stocking feet and a pair of trousers two sizes too big for him.
Murray, now that the corporal was no longer able to retain active command, had resumed his truculent and swaggering manner. Almost the first thing he did was to demand more money of Foster, and call him a liar
when told that every dollar was burned. Then he sought to pick a fight with Hunt, who, as he expressed it, "roped him like a steer,"
but the carload by this time had had too much of his bluster and made common cause against him.

Two brawny lads gave him fair warning that if he laid a finger on Hunt they would "lay him out." Then he insisted on seeing the corporal
and complaining of ill-treatment.
And with such diversion the long day
went on.

Stuyvesant, refreshed by several hours of sleep, yet looking somewhat singed and blistered, went through the car to see the sufferers along towards 11 o'clock. He had inquired of the porter for Miss Ray, who was not visible when he had finished his toilet, and was told that she had remained up until after the doctor
came aboard, and was now sleeping.
Finding three of the men stretched
in the berths with comrades fanning
them, he ordered cooling drinks compounded by the steward, and later, as they began the climb of the Sierras
and the men grew hungry, he sought to get a substantial luncheon for them on the diner, but was told their supply on hand was barely sufficient for the regular passengers.

So when the train stopped at Truckee he tumbled off with three of the party, bought up a quantity of bread and cheese, soda-crackers and fruit, and after consultation with the conductor wired ahead to Sacramento for a hot dinner for 18 men to be ready at the restaurant in the station, it being now certain that they could not reach San Francisco
before midnight. "The company
ought to do that," said the trainmen,
and "the company" had authorized the light breakfast tendered earlier in the day. In view of the fact that every item of personal property in possession of the recruits had been destroyed, together with every crumb
of their rations, nobody questioned
that the company would only be too glad to do that much for the men so nearly burned alive in their traveling holocaust.

Not a doubt was entertained among either passengers or trainmen as to the origin of the fire. It had started underneath, and the dry woodwork burned like tinder, and what was there to cause it but those blazing boxes on the forward truck. The conductor knew there had been no smoking aboard the car, and that every man was asleep when he went through at two o'clock. The brakeman had prophesied disaster and danger. It was God's mercy that warned the poor fellows in time.

Not until along in the afternoon,
as they were spinning swiftly down
through the marvelous scenery about Blue Canyon and Cape Horn, did Miss Ray again appear. Stuyvesant had been sitting awhile by Connelly, and had arranged with him to wire to the Presidio for ambulances to meet the party at Oakland Pier, for two at least would be unable to walk, and until provided with shoes and clothing, few could march the distance.
Then he had spent a few minutes
with the other patients.

When he returned to the sleeper,
there at last was the object of so many of his thoughts. But she was reclining wearily, her head upon a pillow, and the austere maid and two other women stood guard over her.
"A severe headache," was the explanation, and Stuyvesant felt that he must defer his intrusion until later.

Somewhere down the westward slope of the Sierras he found at a station some delicious cherries, and a little basket of the choicest he made bold to send with his compliments
and the hope that her indisposition would soon disappear. The porter came back with the lady's thanks.
The cherries were "lovely," but Stuyvesant observed that not more than one or two found their way to those poorly teeth, the rest being devoured by her too devoted attendants.

It was after nine at night when he marshaled his motley party into the dining-room at Sacramento and they were made glad by substantial, well-cooked food, with abundant hot coffee. They thanked him gratefully, and many of the young fellows, and hoped they might meet more such officers. An elderly passenger who had quietly noted the outlay of money to which Mr. Stuyvesant had been subjected strolled up to the manager. "That young gentleman has had to pay too much to-day. Just receipt the bill, if you please," said
he, and drew forth a roll of treasury notes. Stuyvesant went in search of this new benefactor when he heard of it. "There was really no necessity, sir," said he, "though I fully appreciate your kindness. The company will doubtless reimburse me for any such outlay."

"If they will reimburse you, my young friend," said the veteran traveler, dryly, "they'll reimburse me. At all events, I know them better than you do, and I don't intend to let you bear all the risk." The lieutenant argued, but the elder was firm. As the men shuffled back to the train
with full stomachs and brightened faces, Murray hulking by them with averted eyes, and Mellen tendering a grinning salute, the manager came forward. "There's one man shy, sir, even counting the dinners sent aboard," said he, and Hunt, hearing
it, turned back and explained.

"It is Foster, sir. He said he wasn't hungry and couldn't eat. I reckon it's because he wouldn't turn out in such looking clothes as were given him."

Yet when Stuyvesant went to the car to see whether the young soldier could not be induced to change his mind, it was discovered that he had turned out. His berth was empty.
Nor did he appear until just as the train was starting. He explained that he had stepped off on the outer side away from the crowd for a little fresh air. There was plenty of bread and cheese left from luncheon. He didn't care for anything, really. And,
indeed, he seemed most anxious to get back to his berth and away from the lieutenant, in whose presence he was obviously and painfully ill at ease.

Stuyvesant turned away, feeling a trifle annoyed or hurt, he couldn't tell which, and swung himself to the platform of the sleeper as it came gliding by. At last he could hope to find opportunity to thank Miss Ray
for her attention to the injured man and incidentally her ministrations on his own account. Then, once arrived at San Francisco, where he had friends of rank and position in the army, he would surely meet some one who knew her father well and possibly herself, some one to present him
in due form, but for the present he could only hope to say a conventional word or two of gratitude, and he was striving to frame his thoughts as he hastened into the brightly lighted car and towards the section where last he had seen her.

It was occupied by a new-comer, a total stranger, and the three women
recently sharing her section and more than sharing her cherries were now in animated chat across the aisle. In blank surprise and disappointment, Stuyvesant turned and sought the porter.

"Miss Ray! Yes, suh. She done got off at Sacramento, suh. Dere was friends come to meet her, and took her away in the carriage."

Once more Stuyvesant found himself constrained to seek the society of the maiden of uncertain years.
Her presence was forbidding, her countenance severe, and her voice
and intonation something appalling.
But she might know Miss Ray's address; he could at least write his thanks; but he found the vice president of the Order of the Patriotic Daughters of America in evil mood.
She didn't know Miss Ray's address,
and in the further assertion that she didn't want to know too readily betrayed the fact that her petulance
was due to her not having been favored therewith.

"After all I did for her last night
and to-day 'twould have been a mighty little thing to tell where she was going to stop, but just soon's her fine friends came aboard she dropped us like as if we weren't fit
to notice."

The irate lady, however, seemed to find scant sympathy and support in the faces of her listeners, some of whom had long since wearied of her strident voice and oracular ways. It was well remembered that so far from being of aid or value in caring for the injured men, she had pestered people with undesired advice and interference, had made much noise and no bandages, and later, when an official of the company had boarded the train, had constituted herself spokeswoman for the passengers, not at all to their advantage and much to his disgust. Then, finding that Miss Ray was looked upon as the only heroine of the occasion, she had assumed a guardianship, so to speak, over that young lady which became almost possive in form, so passively was it tolerated.

She had plied the girl with questions as to the friends who were to meet her on arrival in San Francisco, and Miss Ray had smilingly given evasive answers.

When, therefore, they neared Sacramento and the vice president announced her intention of sallying
forth to see to it that proper victuals
were provided for her soldier boys, Miss Ray had a few minutes in which to make her preparations, and the next thing the vice president saw of her supposed ward and dependent,
that young lady was in the embrace
of a richly dressed and most distinguished-looking woman, whose gray
hair only served to heighten the refinement of her features. Just behind the elder lady stood a silk-hatted dignitary in the prime of life,
and behind him a footman or valet,
to whom the porter was handing Miss Ray's belongings.

And what the vice president so much resented was that Miss Ray had not only never mentioned her purpose of leaving the train at Sacramento, but never so much as introduced her friends, at whom the vice president smiled invitingly while accepting Miss Ray's courteous but brief thanks for "so much attention
during the afternoon," but who merely bowed in acknowledgment when she would have addressed them on the subject of Miss Ray's being of so much help to her when help was so much needed, and who spirited the young lady away to the handsome carriage awaiting her.

The vice president was distinctly
of the opinion that folks didn't need to slink off in that way unless they were ashamed of where they were going or afraid of being found out,
whereat Stuyvesant found himself
greeting his teeth with wrath, and so whirled about and left her.

It was after midnight when they reached the pier at Oakland. There, under the great train-shed, track after track was covered with troop cars
and a full regiment lay sleeping.

An alert young officer of the guard
raised his hand in salute as Stuyvesant addressed him. No, there were no ambulances, no soldiers from the

IT WAS ADDRESSED TO "LIEUT. STUYVESANT, A. D. C., TRAIN NO. 2, OAKLAND."

Presidio. They might be waiting across the ferry.

But how was he to get the injured
men across the ferry, thought Stuyvesant. Two of them would have to be carried.

The long train, except that recruit car, was now emptied. The throng of passengers had gone on through the waiting-rooms and up the stairway to the saloon deck of the huge ferry-boat. If he purposed going, no time was to be lost, and the porter bearing his hand-luggage ventured a word to that effect.

Stuyvesant looked back. There were protruding heads at many of the windows of the recruit car, but,
obedient to the instructions given by Connelly, no man, apparently, had left his place, and Connelly, though suffering, had evidently resumed control, much benefited by the services of another physician who had boarded the train in the late afternoon and renewed the bandages and dressings of the injured men. Then Stuyvesant suddenly became aware of a messenger-boy with a telegram. It was addressed to "Lieut. Stuyvesant, A. D. C., Train No. 2, Oakland." Tearing it open, he read as follows:

"Report by wire condition of Recruit Foster. If serious, have him conveyed to St. Paul's hospital. Commission as lieutenant and signal officer awaits him here."

It was signed by the adjutant general at department headquarters,
San Francisco.

But the boy had still another. This too he held forth to Stuyvesant, and the latter, not noticing that it was addressed "Commanding Officer U. S.
Troops, Train No. 2," mechanically opened and read and made a spring
for the car.

The message was from Port Costa, barely 30 miles away, and briefly
said: "Any your men missing? Soldier left car here believed jumped overboard return trip ferry-boat."

One man was missing. Recruit Foster, for whom a commissioner as lieutenant and signal officer was waiting at department headquarters,
could not be found.

CHAPTER IV.

In the busy week that followed
Lieut. Stuyvesant had his full share of work and no time for social distraction. Appointed to the staff of Gen. Vinton, with orders to sail without delay for Manila, the young officer found his hours from morn till late at night almost too short for the duties demanded of him.

The transports were almost ready.
The troops had been designated for the expedition. The supplies were being hurried aboard. The general had his men all the livelong day at the rifle-ranges or drill-grounds, for most of the brigade were raw volunteers who had been rushed to the point of rendezvous with scant equipment and with less instruction. The camps were thronged with men in all manner of motley as to dress and no little variety as to dialect. Few of the newly appointed officers in the department of supply were versed in their duties, and the young regulars
of the staff of the commanding general were working 16 hours out of the 24, coaching their comrades of the volunteers.

The streets were crowded with citizens eager to welcome and applaud the arriving troops. Hotels were thronged. Restaurants were doing a thriving business, for the army ration did not too soon commend itself in its simplicity to the stomachs of some thousands of young fellows who had known better diet if not better days, many of their number having left luxurious homes
and surroundings and easy salaries
to shoulder a musket for three dollars a week.

Private soldiers in blue flannel shirts were learning to stand attention and touch their caps to young men in shoulder-straps whom they had laughed at and called "tin soldiers" a year ago because they belonged to the militia—a thing most of the gilded youth in many of our western cities seemed to scorn as beneath them.

[To Be Continued.]

HANCE'S PROOF.

Unlikely Corroboration of an Arizona Character's Still More Unlikely Story.

Mrs. Edith Sessions Tupper, the author, is a Vassar graduate and a daughter of the late Congressman Sessions, of New York state. Probably the most interesting trip she ever took was through the Grand Canyon of the Colorado a year or so ago, says the Saturday Evening Post.
She made the acquaintance there of John Hance, of Arizona, who lives in the canyon the year round, and who knows more about it than any other man living. Hance is a picturesque character, with a vivid imagination
and this is some of the information
he imparted to the tourist:

"Captain," Mrs. Tupper asked one morning as they sat before his cabin door on the rim of the canyon, "what was the greatest peril of your life?"

Hance considered a moment and then said: "I reckon about as nigh
as I ever come ter going ter glory
was when my hoss jumped 1,400 feet
into the canyon with me on his back."
Then he eyed Mrs. Tupper reflectively to see how she took it. She hesi-tated a moment and then replied:
"Of course, captain, I realize that I am new out here, but you cannot expect me to believe any such story
as that."

The captain rose promptly, and leading his visitor to the very edge of the precipice, demanded: "Now,
then, ma'am, do you see suthin' white
down there on the trail?"

Mrs. Tupper acknowledged that she did.

"Well," he said, with an important grin, "that there white pile you see
is the white bones of that there hoss
of mine a-bleachin'!"

And although Mrs. Tupper knew that the pile of bleaching bones on the trail belonged to a pack animal recently killed, she had not a word to say.

Sure Cure for Ghosts.

The late bishop of London had a fine sense of humor. Some years ago, when Bishop Creighton was bishop of Peterborough, he was the guest, during a confirmation tour in the diocese, at an old manor house, and slept one night
in a room supposed to be haunted.
Next morning at breakfast he was asked whether he had seen the ghost.
"Yes," he replied, with great solemnity, "but I have laid the spirit. It will never trouble you again." Being further questioned upon the subject, the bishop said: "The ghost instantly
vanished when I asked for a subscription toward the restoration of Peterborough cathedral."—N. Y. Tribune.

SCHLEY COURT OF INQUIRY.

Capt. Lemly May Bring One More
Witness Monday and Schley May Take the Stand Again.

Washington, Nov. 1.—In the Schley
court of inquiry Thursday a number of witnesses were introduced by Judge Advocate Lemly to testify in rebuttal of the evidence given in Adm.
Schley's behalf. The court decided early in the day that no witnesses
could be introduced at this stage of the proceedings to give testimony on immaterial points. This announcement was made in connection with an effort to prove a conversation on board the Massachusetts, in which Lieut. Sears, who was Adm.
Schley's flag lieutenant, was reported to have said: "For God's sake
don't discourage him (Commodore Schley), it is all that we have been able to do to work him up to this."

It has the effect of relieving Lieut.
Commander Grant, Lieut. Commander
Potts and other officers of the Massachusetts, who had been called to testify concerning this conversation with Mr. Sears, which is said to have occurred on the Massachusetts just before the reconnaissance of May 31.
On the other hand, the court held that witnesses might be called or recalled any time for the purpose of making additions to former statements, but that none of them could reiterate testimony previously given.
This decision was rendered on an objection raised by Mr. Rayner to allowing Capt. Sigbee to give new testimony when called as a witness for the rebuttal purposes.

The witnesses called in rebuttal
were: Capt. Charles D. Sigbee, Capt.
Francis E. Chadwick, Capt. Joseph G.
Eaton, Lieut. John H. Roys and Chief Quartermaster Neil Anderson, all of whom testified to incidents called with the campaign of 1898.

Capt. Chadwick, in his statement, said that the precautionary dispatches
from the navy department in regard to attacking the Spanish shore batteries had not been communicated to Commodore Schley. This statement is regarded as of great importance by Adm. Schley's opponents, as it distinctly contradicts the admiral's own statements.

Capt. Sigbee testified concerning his interview on the Brooklyn with Commodore Schley. Capt. Eaton was the commander of the dispatch boat Resolute during the war, and his testimony related largely to events which occurred just before and just after the battle on July 3. Lieut.
Roys served on board the Eagle, and his statement bore upon the Eagle's meeting with the Brooklyn when the latter was en route to Cienfuegos
and again while the flagship lay off
that port. He stated that Lieut.
Commander Southerland had asked not to be sent to Port Antonio for coal, and had asked to be allowed to coal from the Merrimac.

Mr. Anderson was chief quartermaster of the Brooklyn during the Spanish war, and was at the wheel
during the battle of July 3. He said that Commodore Schley had given the order of "Hard aport," but that when the order was given the vessel was then hard aport.

Before these witnesses were introduced for the department, the court heard Capt. T. S. Borden, of the marine corps, who served on the Brooklyn, in Adm. Schley's behalf. He was the last of the admiral's witnesses,
and he testified that the admiral had borne himself honorably during the battle of July 3.

Washington, Nov. 2.—At noon Friday Judge Advocate Lemly announced that he had no more witnesses to call, and Mr. Rayner, following him, said that no witnesses
would be summoned on behalf of Adm. Schley in sur-rebuttal. For a moment it appeared as if the now famous case was about to reach a sudden conclusion. But this disillusion was soon dissipated by the announcement on the part of Capt.
Lemly that he might be allowed to bring in one more witness on Monday and also a statement from Mr.
Rayner that Adm. Schley himself would also return to the stand on Monday to correct errors in his testimony as officially reported.

It is probable that the admiral will consume considerable time in going over what he said, and there is also an understanding that he will make some additions to former statements,
but it is not believed beyond what has to say there will be much more testimony taken in the case. The only witness that the judge advocate
still has in mind is Lieut. Strauss.
The court adjourned until Monday.

Women and Jewels.

Jewels, candy, flowers, man—that is the order of a woman's preferences. Jewels form a magnet of mighty power to the average woman. Even that greatest of all jewels, health, is often ruined in the strenuous efforts to make or save the money to purchase them. If a woman will risk her health to get a coveted gem, then let her fortify herself against the insidious consequences of coughs, colds and bronchial affections by the regular use of Dr. Boschee's German Syrup. It will promptly arrest consumption in its early stages and heal the affected lungs and bronchial tubes and drive the dread disease from the system. It is not a cure all but it is a certain cure for coughs, colds and all bronchial troubles. You can get Dr. G. G. Green's reliable remedies at W. T. Brooks'. Get Green's Special Almanac.

Reliable and Gentle.

"A pill's a pill," says the saw. But there are pills and pills. You want a pill which is certain, thorough and gentle. Mustn't gripe. DeWitt's Little Early Risers fill the bill. Purely vegetable. Do not force but assist the bowels to act. Strengthen and invigorate. Small and easy to take. W. T. Brooks.

A Physician Testifies.

"I have taken Kodol Dyspepsia Cure and have never used anything in my life that did me the good that did," says County Physician Geo. W. Scroggs, of Hall county, Ga. "Being a physician, I have prescribed it and found it to give the best results." If the food you eat remains undigested in your stomach it decays there and poisons the system. You can prevent this by dieting, but that means starvation. Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat. You need suffer from neither dyspepsia nor starvation, the worst cases quickly cured. Never fails. W. Scrofula is but a modified form of Blood Poison and Consumption. The parent who is tainted by either will see in the child the same disease manifesting itself in the form of swollen glands of the neck and throat, catarrh, weak eyes, offensive sores and abscesses and oftentimes white swelling—sure signs of Scrofula. There may be no external signs for a long time, for the disease develops slowly in some cases, but the poison is in the blood and will break out at the first favorable opportunity. S. S. S. cures this wasting, destructive disease by first purifying and building up the blood and stimulating and invigorating the whole system.

J. M. Seals, 115 Public Square, Nashville, Tenn., says: "Ten years ago my daughter fell and cut her forehead. From this wound the glands on the side of her face became swollen and burst. Some of the best doctors here and elsewhere attended her without any benefit. We decided to try S. S. S., and a few bottles cured her entirely."

S. S. S. makes new and pure blood to nourish and strengthen the body, and is a positive and safe cure for Scrofula. It overcomes all forms of blood poison, whether inherited or acquired, and no remedy so thoroughly and effectively cleanses the blood. If you have any blood trouble, or your child has inherited some blood taint, take S. S. S. and get the blood in good condition and prevent the disease doing further damage.

Send for our free book and write our physicians about your case. We make no charge whatever for medical advice.

SOME of our farmers are taking fancy prices for the tobacco crop of this year. The wish is farther to the thought. The price of this great staple is absolutely controlled by the most absolute and grinding monopoly in the world to-day. The absolutism of the great Standard Oil Company is as nothing by comparison.

The price of plug tobacco is no lower than it was back in the days when the farmer received 10, 12 and 14 cents a pound for his crop at home, yet, to-day, if he receives 7 cents on an average he not only considers himself a lucky man but he is a lucky man. This great octopus fixes a price that barely keeps the soul and the body of the tenant together. It demands and takes all the rest. Two years' absence from the cultivation of tobacco in this State alone would tear the monster limb from limb.—The Pen-dletonian.

A never failing cure for cuts, burns, scalds, ulcers, wounds and sores is De-Witt's Witch Hazel Salve. A most soothing and healing remedy for all skin affections. Accept only the genuine.—W. T. Brooks.
